

There is little life, learning, and happiness without deep human connections.

– GANDHI

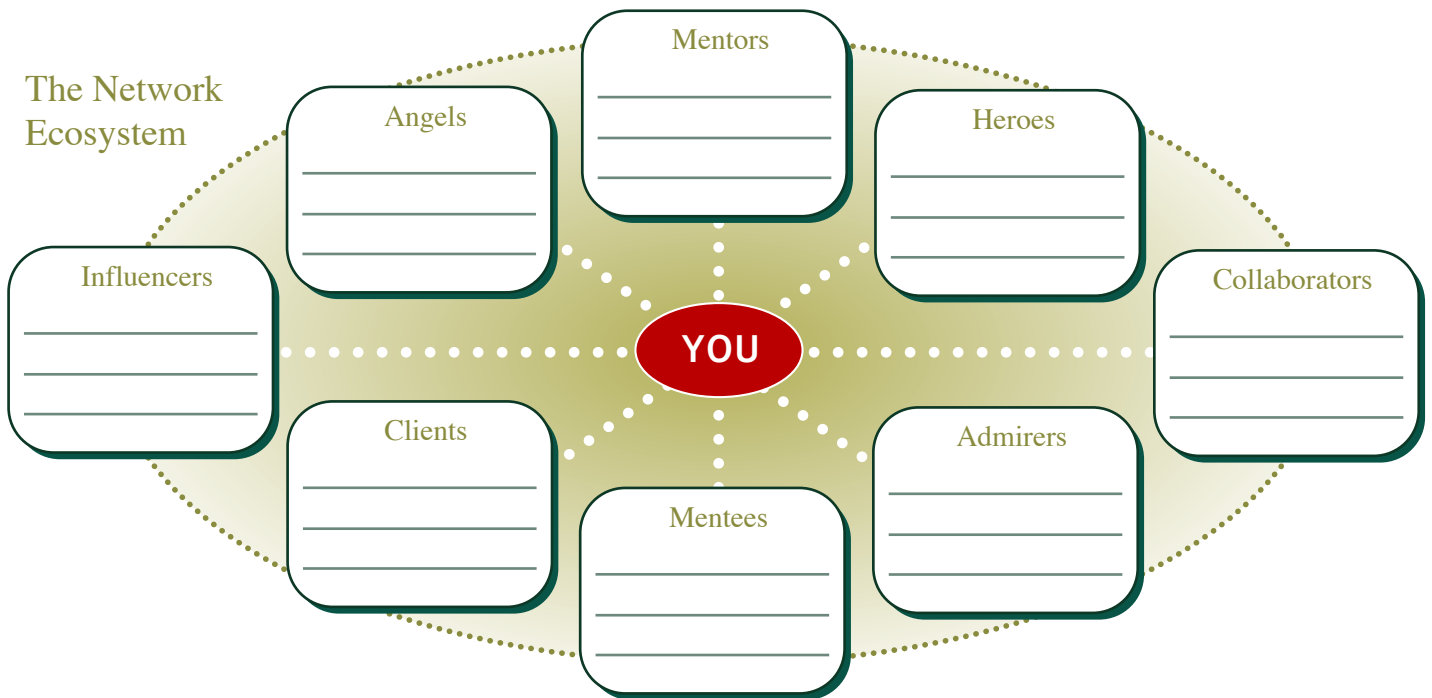

If business comes from relationships, shouldn't building relationships be your primary business?

– MALCOLM FORBES

Your success and happiness are directly correlated to the people in your network, not just within the workplace but outside of it too. And yet, so many people don't spend enough time and thought in networking to help themselves professionally and personally.....until they really need it.

Before you launch or expand your networking, take time to analyze it.
